Legacy Giving Through a Bequest

An excellent way to support Wild Montana’s mission is to make a planned gift, or leave a bequest in your will, living trust or with a codicil. One significant benefit of making a gift by bequest is that during your lifetime it allows you to continue to use the investments or property that you will leave to charity - and of course, you’ll also leave a lasting legacy. You don’t have to be wealthy to make a legacy gift, and it can be done through a simple will.

If you have already named Montana Wilderness Association as a beneficiary in your estate plan, don’t worry. Legally we are Montana Wilderness Association DBA (doing business as) Wild Montana, and with the same federal tax ID number, office location, and contact information, there should be no issues with ensuring that the directives in your will are honored.

Types of Bequests
There are a number of ways you can make a bequest to Wild Montana.

Specific Bequest. A specific bequest involves making a gift of a specific asset such as real estate, a car, other property or a gift for a specific dollar amount. For example, you may wish to leave your home or $25,000 to Wild Montana.

Percentage Bequest. Another kind of specific bequest involves leaving a specific percentage of your overall estate to charity. For example, you may wish to leave 20% of your estate to Wild Montana.
Residual Bequest. A residual bequest is made from the balance of an estate after the will or trust has given away each of the specific bequests. A common residual bequest involves leaving a percentage of the residue of the estate to charity. For example, you may wish to leave 30% of the residue of your estate to Wild Montana.

Contingent Bequest. A contingent bequest is made to charity only if the purpose of the primary bequest cannot be met. For example, you could leave specific property, such as a vacation home, to a relative, but the bequest language could provide that if the relative is not alive at the time of your death, the vacation home will go to Wild Montana.

Bequest Benefits

A bequest is generally a revocable gift, which means it can be changed or modified at any time. You can choose to designate that a bequest be used for a general or specific purpose so you have the peace of mind knowing that your gift will be used as intended. Bequests are exempt from federal estate taxes. If you have a taxable estate, the estate tax charitable deduction may offset or eliminate estate taxes, resulting in a larger inheritance for your heirs.
